London Letter, No. 7

5, Montagu Square
W. 1.

April 24th.

Dear Mr Vining,

I have just returned from a visit to Norfolk, one of England's flattest and chilliest counties, where I have been endeavoring to play golf on a seaside course. The wind, however, was so strong, that the ball usually fell off the tee before I hit it, thus going considerably farther than if I had! I encountered a variety of weathers—sunshine, rain, and snow. One day I played tennis on a grass court, and the next day I made a snow man, and the next I lay basking on the lawn. It is very difficult, under the circumstances, not to become irritable.

The cold seems doubly penetrating, as we are all wearing our Spring clothes, and are supposed to be sauntering down Oxford Street with the warm sun in our faces. Instead of which we battle our way round corners against a strong head wind, holding our hats on with one hand, and wearing woollies under our coats, so that we bulge!

There is the usual after-Easter lull in social events. Many people are still away, either on cruises or in their country homes. The traffic congestion is not quite so acute.

Mr Chamberlain has brought in a depressing Budget — another threepence in the pound, and an extra tax on tea. However, if we are to arm ourselves to the back teeth, and it appears necessary that we should do so, these things
