Dear Seth,

Your having a London correspondent inspires me to write you a few lines from the Sechelles.

Wandering around the world as I have been doing for the past 18 months I have been much impressed by the outlook of the many men in many countries whom I have met.

Of course the "Depression" is a common topic, or rather the possibilities of a revival of business and prosperity. While with each individual according to his occupation and near-view-point and in each country according to its own predominant problems of agriculture or commerce there are hopes or anxieties for improvements in special lines yet. And this is the really important point) Everywhere I go and withwhomever I talk the great emphasis for prosperity is put on the revival of world trade, international trade. It has been borne in on me many times by the wise men of many countries that there is no hope for real improvement in any one country until international trade can be revived in a large way with real confidence.

Narrow nationalism--each country trying to live within and for
