Bootlegging Still Thrives

During July, federal investigators in South Carolina captured forty-four stills, five hundred and sixty-four gallons of liquor and 22,260 gallons of mash. This, of course, is only a small proportion of the bootlegging business.

Most of the stills captured are reported to have been found in the "dark corner" section of Greenville county. There are "dark corners" in almost every county, where bootlegging thrives. And we're afraid it will continue to thrive.—Newberry Observer.

The Pacolet Knitting Company of Lynn are giving their entire force a week's vacation this week.
