Christmas Box

A box of jellies, jams and fruits will be given to St. Luke's hospital for Christmas. Anyone interested may take the contribution to Jackson's Store. This is a much needed box and will be much appreciated.

Six "G-Men" To Help Train State And Local Officers

The police, sheriff, and deputies of Tryon and Polk county have been invited to send representatives to the ten-day training school which The Institute of Government will hold for officers in Chapel Hill beginning January 5.

This is the first 10-day Police School held in the State and will have one of the strongest instructional staffs of any school in the country. The Federal Bureau of Investigation is supplying six instructors from the staff of the National Police Academy headed by Director Hugh H. Clegg. And the "G-Men" will be supplemented as to local phases by officials of the State Highway Patrol. perienced North Carolina officers, and The Institute of Government. The training program is designed not only to aid those attending in the performance of their duties but to train them to act as instructors within their own departments.

All lectures and demonstrations will be held in Chapel Hill except for the firearms instruction and practice, which will be at Fort Bragg.

The school will be in charge of Albert Coates, Director of The Institute of Government, and Special Agent Ed Scheidt, of the "FBI", who has been granted a leave of absense to assist North Carolina officers work out their training program.
