Council To Assist Private Benefactors

(Contributed)

The Polk County Council of Social Agencies, organized last Monday, is intended not only to coordinate the work of social welfare organizations but also to assist individuals in their private benevolences, if they desire information concerning persons who may apply to them for aid. The Council has no wish or purpose to direct or control private giving. Neither will it make available to curiosity-seekers the names and conditions of those persons who are receiving assistance from social agencies. It does happen, however, that some apparently very needy person sometimes goes from agency to agency and from individual to individual presenting his or her case, receiving assistance, and deceiving generous-hearted people as to the amount of aid he gets and the condition need he is in.

Obviously to make gifts of any kind to such a person is to encourage him in the worst type of mediocrity. Persons of this type, unless they are out-of-town beggars here to work the community, are always known to some of the welfare societies. Citizens and visitors who are approached for money, food, clothing, or medical assistance by persons whose actual condition is unknown to them can, if they wish, secure the name and address of the person applying and make inquiry of Miss Rebecca Hoskins, County Welfare Agent, Columbus, as to the real situation.

Lanier Club Tea

The Lanier club tea held at the Library on Wednesday afternoon was one of the most successful ever given there. Over $48 was netted for the Library fund. Approximately 100 people enjoyed the occasion. The Library was attractively decorated in blue and yellow and included Pride of China berries, yellow jasmine in blue vases and blue candles in brass candle sticks. An interesting feature of the event was the serving of chocolate cake, a favorite of former King Edward, VIII, made from an old Maryland recipe used often by Mrs. Wallis Simpson at her home in London, England. The hostesses for the tea were Mrs. James B. Hester, Mrs. Thomas B. Main and Miss Annie Ravenel.
