Polk County Gives To Flood Sufferers

The Polk County Chapter of the American Red Cross has responded to the call for relief to the flood sufferers to the extent of $700 according to treasurer James B. Hester this morning. Other donations are still coming in and are being left with the treasurer, Missildine's Pharmacy, Blue Ridge Weavers, Tryon Bank & Trust Co., or the Bulletin office. The whole county has been touched by the serious condition of the flood districts and donations have come in from Saluda, Mill Spring, Columbus, Lynn and Tryon. Chairman C. Arthur Lincoln is very much pleased with the response made by the local people.

Relief Clothing For Flood Victims

Chairman C. J. Lynch of the Kiwanis committee which is gathering clothing, bedding, and food for the flood sufferers is busy sorting and packing garments already received. The Southern Railroad will haul the shipment free. If garments are tagged with their sizes and socks, hosiery, gloves, etc., tied in knots so as to keep them together in pairs, it will greatly help the relief workers at the scene of disaster. Tom Costa has offered to send trucks to local homes for clothing or other necessities.

Donations of clothing for the Red Cross are also being received at the Blue Ridge Weavers where Mrs. Cathey is having them packed and shipped.

LETTERS

Hon. T. J. McDowell,
Member of the House of Rep.
Raleigh, N. C.
Dear Sir:

IT is reported that you are opposed to Senator Bacon's bill to abolish the absentee ballot in Polk County. If this report is true, you are opposing the interests and desires of every citizen who wishes to see clean politics and fair elections.

Our experience shows beyond doubt that absentee voting is an evil thing; it encourages crookedness, increases expense, leaves a trail of bad feeling and takes the result of the elections out of the hands of the people who live in the County.

You now have an opportunity to be of real service to the community and many of us who supported you in the recent election will be disappointed if you discover yourself to be merely another little politician.

Sincerely yours,
(Bernard Sharp)

Outlook Club At Library Wednesday

The Outlook club of Columbus which is reopening the library there will be entertained at the Lanier club tea by Mrs. Henry Parmelee and Miss Mae Flentye on Wednesday afternoon. Mrs. Parmelee and Miss Flentye hope that all Tryon women who happen to be at the Lanier club tea and are interested will come to the Holden Reading Room and meet their neighbors.
