FILLERS

Just a few odds and ends that have been stored in the editor's mind or hid under some of the numerous papers and general litter piled on his desk. So pass on.

For instance the Banty Rooster, the town pet, has been photographed a lot lately. Seems as if it would be a paying proposition for some enterprising photographer to sell small pictures of the Banty and entitle them "The Spirit of Tryon." It's something to crow over anyway.

The latest horse racing news in Tryon has been the race to Buchanan's to get the little souvenir white horses on sale at a penny each. Old and young are wearing them. Several hundred of the little horses have been sold in Tryon this week.

A lot of readers seemed to get a kick out of the "Bath Night" reminder in the Bulletin Calendar. It may have seemed useless to some, but others don't bathe every Saturday and since spring has arrived and tomorrow's Easter, the reminder, we thought, not smart, but timely.

The Toymakers' big wooden horse has been stationed for several days across the tracks advertising the Tryon Horse Show for April 14th. It encourages the people living on the "other side of the tracks" to attend the show.

A South Carolina Tryonite applied to the local Post Office for a three cent stamp. She was handed a Sherman issue. Remembering what Sherman did to the South she promptly handed it back and asked for three one-cent
