Report of Librarian Of Lanier Library

In reviewing the year's work in the Lanier library it is pleasant to note an increase along all lines; in the circulation of books; in the number of borrowers and readers; in the work with the children, and in a greater use of the reference services of the library, which indicates that more people are coming to it to consult reliable sources of information on many subjects. To give an idea of the number of reference questions that are answered, the following represents those of only one week, either at the desk or by telephone. How to make a garden pool; something about Washington as a planter; the growing of raspberries; what is the eighth reincarnation of Vishnu; where is Ur of the Chaldeans; some good toasts; some humorous stories; something about a recent fiction writer; where was Kipling's Kim written. A motto in a Reference library in the West is "Not what you know, but what you know where to find." So not only books but Readers Guide that valuable index to magazines, are often used.

The tables show that the circulation of books and magazines during the past year has amounted to 13,306, a gain of 2,342, against a gain of 375 last year—an increase in both adult and juvenile books. Biography, travel and literature are the classes predominating, and this year it is gratifying to note that there has been
