

The Tryon Daily Bulletin

(The Smallest Daily Newspaper In The World)

Vol. 10, Est. 1-31-28 TRYON, N. C., TUESDAY, JUNE 22, 1937

E. T. Switzer

E. T. Switzer, 73, formerly of Tryon, died Saturday at Mooresville from cerebral hemorrhage. Funeral services were held Sunday at the home of his sister, Mrs. Edwin Shewmake, at Davidson. Mr. Switzer was formerly treasurer of the Cleveland cloth mills at Shelby. He and his daughter, Miss Rebecca, lived at Lake Lanier for several years.

Another Kiwanis Chair

Through the generosity of Miss Patricia Pensinger the Tryon Kiwanis club has been given another wheel chair for the use of temporary invalids in this section. Several years ago Dr. and Mrs. John Brittan Clark donated the Woodbridge wheel chair which has been used often for convalescents and those with injured limbs. Chairman C. J. Lynch has both of these chairs in charge and the Kiwanis club is glad to render this free service to anyone in this section needing it.

Fighting News

The bout between James Braddock and Joe Louis for the world's championship will be broadcast to night between 9 and 3:30.

Revival Services

Revival services began Monday at the Freewill Baptist church. Services at 11 a. m. and at 8 p. m. Ed Ballew will be in charge of the meeting.

"Curb" Reporter

Workmen have built a platform in front of Slack's Pharmacy. Ollie says he is fixing a better front . . . Mrs. Cathey brought back from Connecticut a new subscription to the Bulletin from Miss Olive Pratt, the well-known actress who visits Tryon often . . . George Cathey met a travelling man in a Charleston hotel. His name was Vining; weighed at least 300 pounds. Last week this reporter received a circular letter and advertisement of a reducing belt. Just wondered who'd been watching my belt line, and now that George and this fellow met! Or was it a coincidence . . . Oh, yeah! yesterday, the longest day in the year was Senator F. P. Bacon's birthday. Not knowing how young he was he was presented a little cake and a tiny candle at a party last night . . . You should see the Mexican post card Cornelia received this morning from Los Angeles. Mrs. Rebecca Jervey. Mrs. E. Pue-Williams and Mrs. Robinson were dressed in Mexican costumes with big broad straw hats and rugs or shawls thrown across the shoulder, etc. Mrs. Jervey was driving a donkey and Mrs. Williams and Mrs. Robinson were riding in the cart. They made very attractive senoras. The card was made at Ti Juana . . . In their dash for the honeymoon after the wedding reception Saturday night the bridal car failed to make the curve near the rock House Art Gallery and went over the bank at the depot. Nobody hurt and little damage to the car. Just a lot of excitement.
