

The Tryon Daily Bulletin

(The Smallest Daily Newspaper In The World)

Vol. 10, Est. 1-31-28 TRYON, N. C., FRIDAY, SEPT. 3, 1937

"CURB" REPORTER

When Alan Calhoun came home the other day from a tour of Europe he was wearing a foreign hat, a beard and mustache. The beard and mustache were American but foreign style and grown in foreign countries. His father didn't recognize him when he got off the train. His mother took his straight to the barber shop, for when the Curb Reporter saw him soon after he reached Tryon he was shaved. But, gee! He had a wonderful time traveling here and there over those interesting countries. But he didn't send a line to the Bulletin. Maybe he wants to keep the fun to himself . . . W. C. Corcoran, of Lancaster, S. C., former Polk county newspaper man, has renewed his subscription to the Bulletin . . . Here's a note for Jim Perkins: Item in Polk County News states that the government is trying to develop a two-member family turkey, a bird small enough to compete with the hen . . . Writer in Asheville Citizen the other day stated that Miss Elizabeth Haight, formerly of Tryon, but who is now teaching in China, was safe at a Chinese summer resort, Kuling. The Eugene Turners are also in that community . . . Newspaper reports today state that Chinese planes have at last bombed Japan

Holiday Monday

Monday, September 6th, is Labor Day, a national holiday, and the Tryon and Landrum banks, post offices will be closed all day. Any banking needed before Tuesday must be done Saturday morning before noon and that goes for stamps, too, because the post office closes Saturday afternoons now.

Tryon, 8; Brevard, 0

Tryon and Brevard played a Western North Carolina Industrial League baseball game on Thursday afternoon at Balfour. The Tryon team went to work with fight in its system and defeated the summer tourists 8 to 0. Ward for Tryon allowed but one hit.

Tryon Vs. Beacon, At Beacon Saturday

Tryon will play Beacon for the Western North Carolina League second half championship on Saturday at Beacon.

A Tryon Special

Tom Costa of the Tryon Fuel Supply told a Bulletin reporter this morning that with the help of the Iron Fireman engineers and fuel engineers, they have found a stoker coal that will burn a half minute each half hour and give sufficient hot water day and night. He says this coal contains the highest heat units possible and will be known as "Tryon Fuel Special." If Mr. Costa can get that new coal advertised as well as Tryon grapes he'll have something.
