Attractive Window

The Boy Scout exhibit in the display window of the Ballenger-Jackson Co., has already attracted considerable attention from young and old. The exhibit contains a tent, and lots of Boy Scout equipment, including pans, fireplace and twisted dough partly cooked on a stick, also egg, bacon, etc., giving a good idea of boys camp life.

Basketball

Tryon high school basketball teams lost both of their games Tuesday night in a hard-fought contest with the Saluda teams.

The Anniversary

Another creative person left out of the long list in the Anniversary edition was the artist Stanford Stevens, who spent the winter here last year. He is giving a one-man show in New York's Macbeth Gallery, February 8th-21st, presenting Vermont in Water Colors . . . Miss Prince of Mimosa Inn reports that a Florida friend read the Anniversary through at one sitting, then gave it to Mrs. McColl to enjoy, and then it is to go to Miss Kiso, who is fond of riding . . . Dr. Bomar sent one to Mrs. Frazer in Alabama with the request that it be sent on to Richmond, Va. . . . Miss Mary Denfeld writing from Philadelphia says "It is so full of things that I have been obliged to start at the beginning and read right through, advertisements and all! . . . Mrs. H. H. Conrad, Washington, D. C., writes her mother, Mrs. J. B. Hester that she enjoyed the Anniversary Edition and the same message from Miss Ruth Rowe in Connecticut. . . . The Lynchburg (Va.) Daily Advance had an interesting editorial on Tuesday in which the concluding paragraph says, "The Bulletin is a marker along a journalistic path, the first ten milestones of which that staff has a distinct reason to be proud."
