

The Tryon Daily Bulletin

(The World's Smallest Daily Newspaper)

Vol. 11, Est. 1-31-28

TRYON, N. C., TUESDAY, MAY 10, 1938

Cowan's Celebrates Fifth Anniversary

John Cowan, the Horatio Alger groceryman who started business on a small scale and with a 30c advertisement in the Bulletin is celebrating his 5th anniversary today with a page advertisement. Soon after Mr. Cowan started in business during the depression he was robbed by a burglar, then was forced out of his building because somebody else wanted it, but now he has his own building combined with a meat market and the theatre building next to it. A few weeks ago he built a large warehouse for his growing feed and fertilizer business, and only last week bought the Tryon Cafe. During the five years he has bought a home and has dropped the horse and wagon delivery system for the modern truck. He says he hopes someday to be one of Tryon's leading business men.

Burial Association Ready By Thursday

F. K. McFarland of the McFarland Mutual Burial Association stated this morning that his association would be ready for business on Thursday. Another association from outside the county has entered the local field, but it will be impossible for members to belong to both associations so Mr. McFarland wishes to let the public know that he will be ready for members on Thursday.

Former Editor Polk County News Dead

Clarence Bush, 67, former editor-publisher of The Polk County News, died of pneumonia today at 8 o'clock at his home in Asheville. Funeral services will be held Thursday, according to information received here by Mrs. C. J. Lynch. Mr. Bush had been with the Asheville Citizen since leaving Tryon for about 15 years. He was a native of Kentucky. His widow survives.

James M. Howard

Landrum, May 9.—James Milton Howard, 21, died at 11:45 o'clock today in a Spartanburg hospital following an illness of two months. Mr. Howard, the son of the Rev. A. T. Howard, pastor of the Hickory Grove Baptist church in Polk county, N. C., is survived by his wife, Mrs. Ethel Dill Howard; three brothers Lloyd and Landrum Howard of Landrum, route 3; and Alvin Howard, Ashland, Ohio; and five sisters, Mrs. Caroline Gosnell, Asheland, Ohio; Mrs. Adline Ward, Landrum route 2; Mrs. Lena Duncan, Mrs. Clarence Grigg and Miss Ida Howard of Landrum route 3.

Funeral services will be conducted Wednesday at the First Baptist church at Landrum, the hour to be announced later. The body will be at the residence after 11 a. m., Tuesday.—Spartanburg Herald

County WPA Supervisor B. E. Samples stated Monday that he had a crew of workers building a road from Saluda to the Palmetto Boy Scout Camp in Holbert's Cove section near Bradley's Falls.