

FRIGIDAIRE Is Always At The Top!

Police Eager to Help

Is our desire to offer them such consideration and personal interest that they will be highly pleased with their welcome here. Thus can the members of the department while maintaining law and order, do more than that, and create in the minds of visitors the satisfying conviction that Tryon and North Carolina greet them in hospitality and are pleased that they come.

We have a real problem when Tryon is full of visitors, keeping traffic moving orderly, and handling our work in general, but that is the time of all times for us to hold to good humor, to show our visitors every possible consideration, and to do it in an unusually human way that will impress them for a long time to come. We are in contact with our visitors on the streets constantly; of necessity their attention is frequently focused upon us; we are expected to give them information. We have an unusual opportunity to make friends for Tryon and I am glad to say that we are continuing to work with increasing effort to do a good job in extending hospitality to visitors.
