

Mr. and Mrs. Glen Miller and John Miller drove down from Lenoir the other day for a visit with their parents, the T. G. Millers. Glen married several weeks ago. . . . . A picture of the Tryon Girls' Basketball team of about ten years ago is on display in the window of the Blue Ridge Weavers. One of the girls lives in Washington, D. C., another in Minnesota, another teaches in Washington, N. C., but you get the fun of guessing them from the picture . . . . . Bill Baker, student at Duke University and representative of the State Department of Conservation and Development was in the Bulletin office Thursday with his camera and shot the editor, press, etc. He was a guest in the home of E. Perry Manville . . . . . Just back from Myrtle Beach 26 East Tennessee farm boys stopped over in Tryon this morning headed for their mountain homes. They had never seen the ocean and had a great time. Trip was made in a canvas covered truck for which they paid 50c per day parking space. They slept under the canvas on blankets and quilts which they brought along; bought their food from stores. They did no cooking; had no dishes to wash. It was a trip for boys. Very economical. The driver said that had they known it sooner they could have gotten free parking, but that it was worth the 50c a day just to be near the crowds.
