"CURB" REPORTER

That distinguished looking white bearded gentleman seen on Trade street Tuesday was F. D. Fox, author and writer of the Blackie Bear stories. He was in company with his radio announcer and was looking for B. L. Ballenger, whom he had not seen in ten years. . . . Kenneth A. Bowen is representing Polk county members of the University of North Carolina alumni who are to meet on Friday at their third annual rally in Asheville . . . Major W. A. Schilleter, a former citizen of Clemson, S. C., had callers a few days ago looking for hooked rugs to go in the noted John C. Calhoun mansion at Clemson . . . The Southern Railway is advertising bargain excursion fares so low that most anyone can go to the seashore. This week on Saturday coach tickets are available to Charleston, S. C., and back for only $2.75. Ticket good until Monday. Next weekend excursions to Savannah and back for $3; Jacksonville, Fla., $4. St. Petersburg $7.50, Miami $9. Agent T. G. Miller is going to be busier than ever in the next few days. . . . The town park near the depot is one of the prettiest places in town now. Nothing helps the looks of a town more than clean streets, parks, and places where the weeds and grass have been cut. It gives the community a trimmed, neat appearance and in-

Rippy Home Is Razed By Fire

The two-story home of Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Rippy at Lynn was completely destroyed by fire from a lightning bolt on Wednesday evening about 7:30 o'clock. The fire grew so rapidly that most of the household things were destroyed before they could be removed. Tryon Fire Department and neighbors responded but little could be done to save the house for lack of water supply. The fire truck chemical tank saved the barn and prevented the fire from spreading. Mrs. Rippy, who was severely shocked, was taken in an ambulance to the home of her sister, Miss Edna Jones, in Tryon. The loss was partially covered by insurance.

Mistrial Ordered In Murder Case

In the case of the accidental murder of Paul Ritchie by automobile charged to Lonnie Payne and Sewell Freeman in Polk County Superior Court, Judge Will Pless has ordered a mistrial in order to allow the prosecution and defense to make a financial settlement out of court.

Flag Tournament
