CURB REPORTER

Ruth Draper, the noted impersonator who delighted Tryon last year with a performance at the theatre when visiting the Lefty Flynns, is now a guest of the James G. K. McClures for a while in Asheville. She came down today for lunch with the Flynns . . . The Tryon Hounds will ride on Wednesday to Cheatham Jackson's. . . . The corner lot at the intersection of Berry St. and Grady avenue is being cleared up for a garden, several thousand square feet of cleaning up to add to the Garden club's clean up program. Dick Burnett has put out some vines to cover the red bank across the street in front of his attractive house. R. M. McCown, who keeps such a pretty front and back yard has gone across the street to pick up paper someone carelessly threw away. Carter Brown has been seen picking up paper in another part of town away from his hotel. There are many considerate, thoughtful people who take care of their own trash. If that were done there would be no need for clean-up weeks. But there are a few people who throw paper and trash of all kinds on the street wherever they are without regard to civic beauty. Coming from the post office they will throw envelopes and paper wrappings with their names on them. The civic minded person comes along and picks it up and reads the name and knows that that fellow is advertising his carelessness.

Hobby Show On March 17th

Everything is set for a revival of the Tryon Hobby Show, which registered such a success when first held three years ago under the sponsorship of the Lanier club. This year the show is to be held under the same auspices, on March 17, throughout the day and evening, in the Lanier library.

Tryon is preeminently hobby-horsical, as was so definitely revealed by the last show when an astonishing number of collections were exhibited by Tryon residents and visitors. Virtually every division of the ancient and honorable practice of indulging in a hobby was represented, and there has been an insistent demand ever since that the show be revived and, if at all feasible, it be made an annual event.

This year the show will be directed by Mrs. Edgar C. Rowe, and everyone who has a hobby—or who, more elegantly, pampers an avocation—is urged to phone to Mrs. Rowe for full information, or to file an application with her as an entrant of an exhibit.

It is planned to open the show at 10 a. m. In the evening there will be exhibitions of moving pictures taken by Tryon's amateur cinematographic enthusiasts. Here is something that one should be willing to go a long way to see.

Those sponsoring the show are hopeful that former exhibitors will again enter their collections, and that there will be many new exhibits. A great many Tryonites have expressed their regret that
