Goerch Tells State About Tryon

Editor Carl Goerch, of the State Magazine, noted speaker and radio commentator, who left Raleigh last week to speak at Hendersonville and Rutherfordton for a brief visit in Tryon gave an interesting account of his trip through the various towns in this week's issue of the State. Hendersonville's Chamber of Commerce President, Harry Buchanan, wanted to take Mr. Goerch to Jump-Off Mountain, but the editor explained in giving his account of the Tryon visit:

We had made a previous engagement to go down to Tryon with some of the Kiwanians from that town who attended the meeting, so after adjournment we set out. Barney Bishop, Charlie Lynch, M. R. McCown, Seth Vining, Julian B. Hester, Carroll Rogers, F. P. Bacon and a number of others.

The bridge across Green River, which we cross soon after passing through East Flat Rock, is the highest bridge in North Carolina. It's 136 feet above the bed of the stream.

Saluda isn't quite as lively a place these years as it was a couple of decades ago. At one time, it used to have a summer population of close to 5,000. There are still a large number of people who have cottages in the hills near there, but the number of floating vacationists is nowhere
