Rural Mail Change

Postmaster W. H. Stearns states that beginning today the mail for Tryon Route One will leave the local office 45 minutes later in order to get the mail off the morning train coming from Spartanburg. This change will give the patrons on the Route better service in that they will have a lot of mail a day sooner, just by the carrier waiting a little longer.

The Woman's Missionary society of the Methodist church met on Tuesday evening with Mrs. Betty Capps.

Communications

Saratoga Springs.

My dear Mr. Vining:

Thanks for the back numbers of the Bulletin. They are most welcome. I note that I said that it was cold here. It was but it isn't now.

A temperature that would be comfortable in the dry air of Tryon is most trying in the still humid air of this section.

Saratoga Springs must have been a rarely beautiful city in its time. There are still many stately old mansions here and tho many of them are now boarding houses, they are surrounded by graceful old elm, oak and spruce trees with the kind of lawns we try to have in Tryon but which we are never able to attain.

But it is strictly a "hick town" now. Not quite up to the standard of "taking in the side walks at night" but meaning that point, for what little transportation there is here stops at 6 p. m.

This condition is due largely to a great influx of emigrants from the seaboard cities, who have gradually taken over the activities of the city and now monopolize them.

Saratoga also has been the victim of an ambitious political spending orgy whose failure has reacted on it.

Recognizing the real merit of the waters here a former governor, noted for his willingness and talent for spending money other than his own, put thru a plan which if properly carried out might
