CHAMBERLAIN HAS HOPES FOR PEACE

London, July 31.—The house of commons tonight gave Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain what amounted to a strong vote of confidence after he announced that he still was hopeful of finding a way of escape from Europe's "present nightmare" by means of peaceful negotiation.

The prime minister's statement revived speculation of a possible new attempt at general European appeasement.

Europe's rulers as well as her people, he said, appeared to be coming around to the realization of the "profound truth" that the next war would heap disaster on victors and vanquished alike.

Nevertheless, the government made it clear that it was determined to push the greatest military preparations in British peacetime history.

"With the achievements of the last few months and with the growing strength of this country we can face the summer ready for anything," said Richard A. Butler, under secretary of foreign affairs, in winding up a long and acrimonious debate on foreign affairs. —Asheville Citizen.
