Spartans Are On Program For School At Clemson

Two Spartan women, Mrs. Arch Walker and Mrs. A. M. Chritzberg, are among the speakers for the program to be presented by The Garden club of South Carolina, at the Opportunity school at Clemson College, during the week of August 7 through August 11.

The summer garden school at Clemson College, the Garden club of South Carolina and The Opportunity School are cooperating in presenting this program and will feature Mrs. Clarence E. Owens of Columbia, in a two-day course "Christmas Greens and Decorations"; Mrs. Arch Walker of this city, will present a two-day course in covering the subject of "Staging and Judging Flower Shows." Mrs. Chritzberg will talk on "Annuals and Perennials."

The Opportunity school opened

July 22 and will continue through August 19, the week of August 7 being devoted to the aforesaid subjects, and is sponsored by the Adult Department of the State Department of Education for the old and the young.

The purpose of the school is a college vacation summer school for those over 16 who, though they cannot go to day school or college, wish to become better citizens and better homemakers.

Meals and rooms will be provided for those attending for $5 a week or $1 per day. Fees for courses will be $1 for each two-day course and 50 cents for each one-day course. No charges will be made for evening courses. Applications should be sent to Miss Mary Major, Clemson College.
