Arledge Hardware Adds Auto Wood Heaters To Its Line

The automatic wood burning heaters with thermostatic control have been added to the Arledge Hardware stock of stoves and heaters. This new invention which proved so popular last year, enables users of wood stoves to save half their fuel bill and at the same time get a regulated uniform heat 24 hours of the day. Some users claim that they build only one fire, close up the draft instrument at night and open it up in the morning, and in that way keep a fire going all the time at a saving over stoves that overheat at one time and allow the room to chill at other times. A picture of the stove is published in the Arledge advertisement in today's Bulletin.
