Our London Letter

our expeditionary force does not go until next week. I thank God that my husband is manning an anti-aircraft gun just outside London so that perhaps I might sometimes see him. On these occasions one should be an unmarried orphan made of steel!

There is no hatred for the Germans. We feel they have been duped and must be quite as miserable as ourselves.

It brings peace to my mind to think of Tryon and all its pleasant ways, and I send it my grateful thanks.

Yours in haste,
Virginia Thesiger.

Nelson Jackson, III, returned Sunday to Clemson college for his sophomore year.
