TRYON, N. C., THURSDAY, NOV. 16, 1939

CURB REPORTER

Thanks to Charlie Lynch I was guest of the Executive club at the George Vanderbilt on Monday to hear Will Durant the noted philosopher and author. The large banquet hall was packed with business and professional leaders of Asheville, Hendersonville and other cities in Asheville vicinity. It was ladies' night, and only two widely scattered seats were left. The Bowens and Manvilles were there from Tryon. And at my end of the table were Dr. and Mrs. S. P. Gay of Waynesville and Dr. and Mrs. Carey T. Wells of Canton. Of course they knew our Drs. Derby and Bishop. Mr. and Mrs. James I. Mason of Asheville on my right knew the Pettigrews; and Wythe Peyton on my left, postmaster of Asheville and former Kiwanis lieutenant governor of this district, knew me. It made you feel that it is hard to have a meeting of strangers within a radius of 50 miles of Asheville. Julian Hester was the only Tryon member absent. These local men who belong to the Executives club are doing a good service not only to themselves but to their communities. It is the outside contacts that make local leaders worth more to their communities, especially when we need outside cooperation. The Executives' club makes it possible for local leaders to contact national and international leaders from time to time. Only the large centers can afford to have such organizations. Durant gave the same address in Charlotte on Tuesday before the Charlotte Executives' club. He thinks a na-

Winners of Football Contest Announced

When the tied winners in the Ballenger-Jackson football contest drew for the prizes J. Frank Richardson won the first prize, a sport coat. Marion Green, Tryon star football player, received the second prize, an Adams Hat and Mrs. Fred S. Owens drew for the third prize, $1.50 in merchandise. Another guessing contest is on again this week and anyone may enter by applying at the Ballenger-Jackson Co. for a blank. There are no requirements; nothing to buy; no red tape; it is all free!

Knows His Chickens

Sam Dobson had charge of the Tryon Kiwanis program on Tuesday and had as his guest speaker, T. N. Wilcox, who started several years ago with a few chickens that his mother gave him and built up a breed of chickens that have won for him the state championship and national recognition. Mr. Dobson stated that Mr. Wilcox is one of the three outstanding poultry raisers of the nation and that when he tried to get better stock to improve his chicken flock, investigation proved that he had them in his own yard. The talk and discussion that followed was very interesting.
