James H. Perkins

News was received in Tryon this morning of the sudden death of James H. Perkins at his Greenwich, Conn., home last night. Mr. Perkins who had been recuperating at his Tryon home for several months following a serious illness had returned to his office in New York only a few weeks ago, and took over his work as chairman of the board of the National City Bank of New York.

Mr. Perkins was born at Milton, Mass., on July 11, 1876. He married Katrine Parkman Coolidge of Boston on November 22, 1906. He is survived by Mrs. Perkins and three children, Mrs. Franklin Parker, Jr., (Eleanor H.), Richard S. Perkins and Miss Elizabeth Joan Perkins, all of Greenwich and Tryon.

Mr. Perkins, who was known to many Tryon friends as "Jim" and loved for his friendly neighborly spirit, built a home in the Hunting Country near here about two years ago and planned to retire there and ride his hobby of raising turkeys, and to enjoy horseback riding. He had built his stables and turkey farm and was getting the estate in shape when death overtook him. He was the kind "Yankee" friend the Bulletin mentioned on Thursday, who loved us so well that he sent money here for worthy causes from time to time, but didn't want his name mentioned. We, in Tryon, were getting closer to him all the time, and were loving him for the good man that he was, but to the outside world he was head of one of the biggest banks in the
