The Saluda Scene

As seen by Brandon

The post office is agog with excitement. A government inspector spent the day here looking for new quarters to lease as a post office. The excellent service rendered by Postmaster Cooper and his staff deserves a more modern arrangement.

The story arrives rather late about the calamity that took place in Henderson county, about two miles from Saluda last Friday. A mad dog went on a rampage, biting between 15 and 20 other animals, mostly livestock. The dog was killed and his head sent to Raleigh for examination. Today a report arrived verifying that the dog actually had rabies. The bitten animals are having to be shot. Six were bitten at one man's place.

HERE AND THERE:
