From London

Thinking readers of the Bulletin might be interested, W. H. Burtenshaw, of Tryon, has given us the following letter, received by a relative in New York whose brother has been in London for several years and now resides near Buckingham Palace which has lately been bombed:

London—Sept. 2, 1940.

We are now in the midst of the raids on London—days not too good—and nights most hectic, and I am quite sure they will get quite a bit worse before they get better. However, the R. A. F. have been absolutely superb—perfectly marvelous—and none of us here have the slightest doubt as to the ultimate outcome. Up to now they have sent planes over here in such quantities as six hundred to eight hundred and each time they have gone back damn well crippled. They, of course, come over in waves of one hundred to one hundred fifty, but sometimes eight hundred are employed in all and each time these wonderful British pilots meet them and send them back with losses of at least four to one. I don't know what figures you are getting, but you can take it as absolutely gospel truth (and I know of what I am talking) that the Huns are losing easily four times as many planes as we are here—any other figures are perfect lies.

My present purpose in writing this letter is to tell you all not to worry about me. I am absolutely safe and secure. At the

Dr. Sewall To Lecture On The New Testament

The Reverend Charles G. Sewall has consented to give another course of lectures in connection with the second year of the Inter-Church Training School. They will be similar to those of last year, but this year on The Background, Contents and Authorship of the Books of the New Testament. They will deal with the inter-relation of the Four Gospels, St. Paul's Epistles, and Early Christian life, in fact with all the books and the circumstances which brought them forth. There will be eight of these lectures. The general public, as well as Sunday school teachers, are invited to these lectures. Every attendant will be free to leave the school at the conclusion of each lecture and will be in no way obligated to attend the Discussion Classes for Teachers which follow. The fee for the school is fifty cents and this includes the right to attend the Discussion Classes.

Dr. Sewall's lectures last year drew a great number of people, an average attendance of over one hundred, most of the time nearer to one hundred twenty-five. The lectures were so popular that they were mimeographed and 110 copies have been sold. There are 14 copies left which may be had of Mr. McGavern at $1 each. Those who have talked with Dr. Sewall about the course of lectures this year report that they are even more interesting and vital, dealing as they do with the Founder of Christianity, the Beginning of the Church and the writing of the
