The Innkeepers Did It!

In writing up the opening of the recreation park near the railway station the Bulletin said the Garden club landscaped the place. This was an error. The Innkeepers should have had the credit. They are the ones who conceived the idea of turning an eyesore into a spot of beauty. Then they gave teas and solicited money to pay for the work. E. G. Vollmer donated much of the shrubbery and flowers. A large number of people turned out on Monday afternoon to enjoy the sport of archery in park. Mr. and Mrs. George A. Cathey and their clerical staff made a visit to the Cherokee Indian reservation to get first hand information on the right kinds of arrows and bows, and on how to use them.

To Beautify Roadsides

A central committee headed by C. J. Lynch and representing various civic organizations, met on Monday to make plans for beautifying the highway approaches within the town limits. The committee is now investigating the cost of the work. The Town of Tryon was represented by C. H. Helms, the Rotary club by John L. Brown, Garden club by Mrs. Tom Costa and Mrs. Raymond Dodge, the Chamber of Commerce by K. A. Bowen, and the Kiwanis club by Tom Costa.

The Perkins Cotton Patch was represented in the Western Carolina Fair, Hendersonville last week and won a first prize blue ribbon for two pens of turkeys. One pen had three white Harllon turkeys and the other three Mammouth bronze turkeys. Two blues and a red ribbon were won for best display of Southern Beauty variety of corn.
