miles in length and about four to eight miles wide with numerous paved roads. Most of the transportation is by automobile with the ole' model "T" predominating although many of the older chamorros still use the caraboa and two-wheel cart.

The majority of the native population are called Chamorros, the origin of which is obscure but as their legend it is probable they were a group who became detached and isolated in the Marianas Islands from Proto-Malays in their migration eastward from the mainland of Asia.

The older women still wear the old custom dresses. Most of them belong to the Catholic church.

A typical native house is built of wooden framework, covered with palm leaves interwoven which makes them leak-proof.

The American families live in regular statewide houses, built of stucco, rock or wood, with large screened-in porches.

The climate of Guam is healthful and on the whole very pleasant. The average yearly rainfall is about 89.9 inches of which most falls during the months of July thru October. Although the island is in the typhoon belt of the western Pacific, it is seldom visited by severe typhoons, but we happened to experience one of the seldom times. We have had several close calls and this topped anything we have seen so far in the way of storms. The wind reached a velocity of 150 miles an hour or more, doing a great deal of damage. The island as a whole looked like a wreck, some of the homes were blown away completely, and hundreds wrecked beyond repair. The wind drove pieces of wood thru the sides of a wooden building (I began to believe the old saying "it rained cats and

George Washington Tea

Reservations are now being made for the patriotic tea to be held at the Library on Friday afternoon, February 21st, the day preceding the birthday of our first great patriot. The American flag will be used in the decorations and the colors carried thru on the tables, where you can entertain a group of your friends. There will also be a Dutch Treat Table for all and sundry. Music and conversation will accompany the Tea and the good confections that the women of the Lanier Club can always be counted on to furnish. Better have it in mind and ask Miss Carpenter to save you a place. 35 cents is the moderate charge.—Adv. 14, 17, 20.
