COMMUNICATIONS

Editor of the Bulletin:

DO YOU SEEK FAME AND IMMORTALITY? If so, here's a way for one or two young men and women to begin, at the same time that they help a very famous man from Tryon,—namely Donald Culross Peattie, the naturalist.

In 1928 the University of North Carolina published Mr. Peattie's FLORA OF THE TRYON REGION. This is probably the most complete catalog, from a botanical standpoint, that refers to any region in the United States. It lists 1090 specimens with the place where found, the date, and the name of the finder.

Following Mr. Peattie's last stay here, he made additions and corrections, printed December 1937. Now he writes asking for some one to collect specimens of the wild roses of Tryon. Here is a paragraph from his letter:

"The specimens, besides including some flowers, should be long enough to have some bit of foliage and stem. The data with the specimens should include the date and the locality and the name of the finder, as for instance: "June 10, along the banks of Vaughn's Creek, in sunny open thickets." Also, I should like to know if the plant was a climbing, trailing rose, or an upright species. The specimens can simply be put inside newspapers and pressed flat and dry."

It is strange how scientific men can identify such dried up pieces of plants, but they can. Mr. Peattie is undoubtedly preparing

Sixth Grade Wins First Prize in Clean-Up Project

Announcement was made today by the judges that first prize had been awarded to the sixth grade of the Tryon public school for its work in beautifying portions of the school grounds as one of the projects in connection with Tryon's recent Clean-Up Week. The first prize is a subscription to Nature Magazine. Honorable mention was awarded to the seventh grade.

The judges were Miss C. H. Sawyer, Miss Helen Roberts and Mrs. S. A. Woody.

Early in the spring the school premises on which the beautifying work was to be done, were inspected by the committee, and again a few days ago after the work has been done. The fifth, sixth, seventh and eighth grades participated in the project.

TRYON NOSES OUT CANTON NINE, 7-6

Tryon smashed out 16 base hits here Saturday to defeat Canton, 7 to 6, in an Industrial league baseball game.

Holbert of Tryon and Ledford of Canton each clouted out a home run, Holbert's in the sixth with no one aboard and Ledford's in the ninth with two mates on base.
