TRYON, N. C., THURSDAY, MARCH 5, 1942

CURB REPORTER

Waverley Hester received a telegram from Bob and Marion Anderson inviting Tryon friends to see the patriotic musical revue, "You Can Defend America" at Converse College Aud. tonight at 8 o'clock. Bob Anderson formerly lived in Tryon and his wife, Marion Clayton Anderson, an outstanding movie actress, was featured in "Barretts of Wimpole Street" and also in "Mutiny on the Bounty". The revue to be given in Spartanburg gave two performances in Columbia, the second last night upon invitation of the governor and legislative officials. The cast is composed of 75 people from all parts of the nation chosen for their particular talent in presenting various phases of the importance of defending America. Marion Clayton Anderson plays the part of "Miss Trust" and does her bit to sow seeds of suspicion and finally causes the industrial machine to slow down until "Total Defense" brings together all groups to resume assembly line production. Bob and Marion were visitors in Tryon last year and made new friends here. On Sunday night their play will be presented at the Carclina Theatre in Greenville, S. C. . . . Allen Lambright, formerly of Landrum is chairman of the Spartanburg County Council of Civilian Defense and will be one of the hosts to the cast . . .
