Life or Death

There are 80,000 children in Un-occupied France, who can be saved from starvation ONLY if we care that they should be saved. Their destiny is in our hands. The Friends Service Committee of France (the Quakers) is daily feeding 50,000 of them in 400 school canteens; 10,000 babies are receiving one pint of milk a day. To continue this food and milk service and to extend it to 30,000 more, a campaign for funds has been initiated by the Coordination Council of French Relief Societies, with headquarters in New York. When these funds are available, 650 tons of milk, now held in Switzerland, will be released for shipment to France and foodstuffs will be brought in from Portugal. In this connection, it is essential to stress one all important fact. The Friends Committee has absolute control over these shipments from the movement of arrival to the point of consumption. Their trucks meet the sealed cars and their workers supervise the delivery and distribution of supplies. Unawareness of this fact has deterred many Americans from giving aid, some of them fearing confiscation of supplies by the Germans and others confusing it with the Hoover plan. There is sufficient evidence on file at New York headquarters to disprove both of these theories.

This appeal for funds is not confined to lovers of France; it extends to all men and women; to those who have children of their own and who can well understand the anguish of parents who must witness the slow starva-
