COMMENCEMENT FINALS

The Tryon high school commencement exercises came to a close on Friday evening at the school auditorium. The commencement address was delivered by Editor Seth M. Vining who gave as the keynote of his message to the graduates, the importance of observing and not just seeing things. He gave several illustrations of young people making a success in life just by observing simple needs and doing something to fill the need. He also urged them to prepare themselves for leadership after the war, and advised them to get interested in politics and civic affairs now.

The excellent valedictory address by Miss Evelyn Taylor-Tanner and the salutatory address by Miss Evelyn Cromer were well delivered.

Nelson Jackson, Jr., chairman of the school board delivered diplomas to 20 graduates and expressed his pride in the work of the school and the community.

Superintendent M. B. Caldwell presided over the exercises, Dr. George Farrand Taylor gave the invocation. Seth M. Vining introduced the speaker. The seniors sang their Alma Mater song and Mrs. Walter Jones played the accompaniment on the piano.
