

ENTERED AS SECOND-CLASS MATTER AUGUST 20, 1928, AT THE POSTOFFICE
AT TRYON, N. C. UNDER THE ACT OF CONGRESS, MARCH 3, 1879

THE TRYON DAILY BULLETIN

The World's Smallest Daily Newspaper, Seth M. Vining, Editor.

Vol. 15. Est. 1-31-28

TRYON, N. C., TUESDAY, AUG. 4, 1942

CURB REPORTER

Thanks to Mrs. N. R. Rector, Sr., we saw a copy of The St. Petersburg, Fla. Times Sunday edition which had a full page of pictures taken at the party given by Mrs. N. B. Jackson and her brother, Lieut. John H. Cantrell in honor of a group of officers at MacDill Field. One picture shows Mrs. Jackson serving at the buffet meal; another shows Miss Emily Jackson between two northern officers and explaining something about orange trees; Miss Mary Jackson was shown greeting the guests; three other pictures showed members of the par-playing tennis, playing the piano, singing or eating at individual tables which were scattered in the living room and on the porch. . . . Weather here Monday 93 high, 70 low, rain .93 . . . Nelson Jackson, Jr., Dr. Chas. E. Cauthen, and Louis F. Bunte are playing in the Biltmore Forest Country club tournament . . . An interesting book, "Birds of North Carolina" by Thomas Gilbert Pearson and Dr. C. L. Brimly, is now off the press, and an autographed copy has been sent to Charles C. West, secretary of the Tryon Bird club . . . Dr. Joseph Placack, Jr., now a lieutenant commander, senior grade, expects to retire to Tryon after the war. He owns property on Skyuka road.

Jack Kimberly's Work In Washington, Praised

In a northern metropolitan newspaper, which is running a series of articles about Donald M. Nelson's chief aides in the War Production Board who are helping speed up America's war production, appeared the following which will be of interest to his Tryon friends:

"Washington, July 30.—In the gallery of portraits of personalities who have helped Donald M. Nelson to perform as generalissimo of production, John R. Kimberly has played an important role in facilitating the conversion of civilian industries to their new khaki roles of armament makers.

"Kimberly shared with Amory Houghton the job of assisting Philip D. Reed, chairman of General Electric, in his wartime role as director of industrial branches of the War Production Board.

"One of the top ranking men on the board, in sizing up Kimberly's work said to me:

"He is a young man who came here unknown and who made very great progress. He is very able, and has been capable in any job assigned to him. He gets along with people, and is what we call around here a total man."

"Kimberly's operating philosophy inheres in starting out by getting his facts straight, and then, having studied a situation, making a fight to stand his ground."

SOFTBALL TODAY

Tryon Players and Adams-Millis will play softball this evening at 6:30 at A.-M. park.