CURB REPORTER

Chas. J. Lynch received notice from his Elk's club at Columbia, S. C., the other day that his name was drawn out of the hat for the attendance prize, and as he was not present he didn't get it. The prize was $11 Being chairman of the Polk Civilian Defense Council, Charlie is supposed to go to a state meeting in Raleigh today. He has had letters or telegrams from Governor Broughton, Ben Douglas and other state officials, but it costs about $40 in expenses for one of these meetings; and the local chairmen don't get a salary or expense money. . . . Stepping Stones to Literature was the title of a primary school book of mine about 35 years ago and on the first page was a picture of the small child learning to walk stepping on the stones in the pathway leading from its home. People living today have seen so many stepping stones in the great progress the world has made within the past 75 years. Matthew Eylar, now a visitor in Tryon, who plans to make this the half way point each year between his homes in the North and Florida, was one of the original typewriter salesmen. He sold Mark Twain his first typewriter although Mark Twain never used it much. "Lefty" Flynn was among the early motion picture actors. There
