CURB REPORTER

Mrs. Ella Fowles has received one of the leaflets the German airmen dropped over England after the Dieppe raid. It was sent by her son, Lieut. Vernon Fowles, who is in England and was in the raid. He reports the lawns and streets were strewn with the leaflets which tried to show the failure of the Commando raid. Lieutenant Fowles said they were greatly exaggerated . . . Paul B. Kelley has notice of a cablegram from his son, Paul, Jr., who is in the U. S. Merchant Marine Officers Training school some where in the Pacific. It was the first news from him in six weeks. . . . Mrs. J. E. Morgan'sson-in-law is now Lt. Col. Preston B. Mayson and aide to General Bryden. He is now at N. Falmouth, Mass. . . . A letter from Capt. Bill Ward, Jr., of the Marines on Gaudalcanal Island states that he saw Frank Wall on September 2 and that the Marine unit there was in fine shape. Some of the interesting points in Capt. Bill Ward's letter written on September 3 from the Gaudalcanal Island in the Solomons were: The last letter he had received from home was written July 19th. The Marines have plenty of sulphur drugs, but tooth paste, shaving cream, writing paper, etc., are hard to get. He lost his fountain pen and had to use a Jap pen.
