COMMUNICATIONS

Clover, S. C., Nov. 6, 1942.

Dear Mr. Vining:

I notice on the wrapper that my Bulletin expires on the 10th. I am enclosing a check for a year for which please extend my subscription. I enjoy reading the Bulletin very much. It keeps me in touch with people I used to know especially the boys in service. I miss a copy occasionally but I think it's the fault of this post office. Our regular mailman went to the Army some time ago and since then it has been hard to keep one, for Uncle Sam needs our boys.

I have shown the Bulletin to a good many people and they think it is very unique. When I tell them I was born in Tryon they say they don't blame me for wanting the Bulletin.

I know Tryon is beautiful now. I wish I could get up there, but I don't guess it's possible with conditions as they are.

Tell all my friends in Tryon for me.

Sincerely,

Joe Dennis.

(Editor's Note): We print the above letter for several reasons. First, because it is from some one who loves Tryon and wants you to know it. Second, because it was written on a typewriter with one finger picking out each letter, for Mr. Dennis has been crippled all his life, not able to walk, or use his hands in rolling a wheel chair. He has to be carried everywhere he goes. What schooling he has had was given by his father, J. A. Dennis, former cashier of the Tryon bank and

Soldiers Entertained Sunday At Homes and Parish House

About 40 Camp Croft soldiers were entertained Sunday through the church committee. Reservations were made through Mrs. F. P. Bacon for the men who were entertained in the various homes for Sunday dinner. The afternoon was spent in playing golf, hiking in the mountains and in visiting points of interest. In the late afternoon they gathered at the Parish House for a get-together meeting, games and songs. Rev. D. M. McGeachy, chairman, made a talk of welcome and Rev. B. G. Henry gave the prayer. Supper was served to the following soldiers by the ladies committee:

Alfred W. Brokaw, New Athens, Ohio; Paul E. Adkins, Circleville, Ohio; John G. Sutherland, Washington, D. C.; Dan Cleary, Jr., Washington, D. C.; Clifton H. Buhrmaster, Washington, D. C.; Joseph P. Geoco, Kingston, N. Y.; Clement E. Conger, Alexandria, Va.; Chas. G. Brown, Alexandria; Felix Fico, Astoria, N. Y.; N. T. Roncase, Bronx, N. Y.; Joseph N. Racaniello, Brooklyn; David P. Mackin, Milwaukee; Vincent H. Swedberg, Bronx; Robert N. Cohn, Chicago; Andrew R. Skinnell, Philadelphia; Louis C. Grilli, Yonkers, N.
