Aunt Petunie of Punkin Ridge, puffing away on her corn cobb pipe. Says, "As how she knowed we were fighting this war fer to make Amerikie safe for our chillun. But she was afeared the schools taking up so early, with some little chillun having to leave home before daylight, on cold frosty mornins' to meet them thar buses, would catch their death of colds and all die with T. B.'s. And we wouldn't have many chillun left to enjoy our blessed freedom. Lowed she knowed thar ain't but one time now, war time, but for to save her life she didn't see why the schools didn't take up a hour later these short days and turn out a hour later, and that would be a plenty early to git out on these here cold winter days. Fer I done looked in my Ladies' Birthday Almanac and the sun don't rise till 8:15 and the days air gettin' shorter."

Quaint little woman of Punkin

Ridge, I believe many will agree that you have something there.

Sixth Grade: Last Wednesday Lieutenant Robert M. Gamble visited Miss Mary Gamble, who had not seen him for two and a half years. He is stationed at U. S. N. R., Atlanta, Ga. Mrs. Martin took over the class for Miss Gamble.

We are sorry to hear that Dick Dalton broke his collar bone.

Seventh Grade: The seventh grade has started a window garden. We have quite a variety of plants now.

Our grade at the first of the year organized a Victory club with Betsy Walcott as our president, Donald Arledge as vice-president, Helen Brundage as secretary and Ben White as treasurer.
