Two Camp Croft soldiers write the following letter to a local business man and his wife:

"Ed and I wish to thank both of you and your daughter for delightfully culminating the most pleasant Sunday either of us have experienced since we have been in the Army. We indeed envy you the privilege of living in such a beautiful community as Tryon and you can easily realize that after the red clay of camp, we especially appreciated the ridges that we will long remember.

"Such hospitality as was so nonchalantly and unselfishly offered us, is extremely gratifying and nothing that we can write can quite make you realize our gratitude. Suffice to say that Lake Lanier, Tryon and your family will remain long in our memories as a charming day.

"Sincerely yours,
"Richard J. Law,
"Edward Cuneo."
