Major Davenport Home

Major W. Kyle Davenport, Jr., of the U. S. Marines, and son of Mr. and Mrs. W. K. Davenport of Landrum arrived home Friday noon after 18 months in the Pacific islands. Major Davenport made the trip by ship to San Francisco then went to Los Angeles to take an airplane for Columbus, Ohio, where his plane was grounded on account of bad weather. He rode the train from Columbus to Landrum where his wife and year-old son, W. K., III, were visiting Mr. and Mrs. Davenport, Sr. Major Davenport had never seen his son, who was born six months after the major sailed for the Pacific islands.

Only one other member of the family was needed for a family reunion and that was Lieut. John D. (Jack) Davenport, who is now flying bombers in North Africa.

Major Davenport will be here for several days.
