CURE REPORTER

Weather Tuesday: High 85, low 62; rain 1.34 . . . The strong winds Monday night brought a lot of cool air, blew down a few trees and disrupted electric service in some places, but isn't it grand today? Felt almost cold enough for frost. . . And there are many wearing sweaters and coats today . . . That new class of workers for surgical dressings at the Red Cross, had 23 people last Thursday night. Here is a job most anyone can do to help in the war effort. And when you join a group of friends the work is interesting as well as helpful to doctors and nurses in caring for our wounded.

Have been reading Frank Gallimore's Firestone Home and Auto ads in the Bulletin. Visited the store Tuesday and found many things he hasn't advertised. The stuff is coming in all the time and he hasn't been able to put up all his counters and shelves. Next door the Tryon Cafe is being cleaned up, painted and changed to Ballew's Cafe. Mr. Ballew says it is his ambition to have one of the finest restaurants Tryon has ever had, good food, good service, and invites the public to visit it. . . Town of Tryon street department is putting in a new sewer line on Chestnut street. . . Postmaster R. O. Andrews was out this morning inspecting the hospital

KNOWLES KNOWS

Charlotte, N. C., June 20.—Entering June 1 with a backlog of more than 12,000 approved applications for new Grade I passenger car tires in Western North Carolina, over and above available quota, the district office of the Office of Price Administration today cautioned motorists to take extra care of their tires during the summer months in order to make them last until replacements can be made.

Sam E. Knowles, district mileage rationing officer, pointed out that one of the objections to synthetic rubber, the only kind now available for civilian passenger car use, is its inability to withstand heat as well as tires made from crude rubber.
