Through Federal Crop Insurance, farmers have an opportunity to make sure of some returns from their efforts and investments.

Two contracts are available. One covers a maximum of 50% of the farm average yield and the other covers 75%.

Any person who expects to have an interest in the 1945 cotton crop at seeding time may insure his interest in the crop. Premiums are figured on the acreage actually seeded.

While crop insurance is available for Polk farmers, there is one "if" that must be satisfied before the farmers in any county can share the benefits of this protection. That "if" is the requirement provided by Congress that Crop Insurance applications be received from at least 50 farms or one-third of the farms normally producing insurable crops in the county before Crop Insurance becomes effective in the County.

All producers interested in this protection on their cotton crop should contact their local AAA committeemen, or agents who have been authorized by the AAA, at once.
