Zenothan Waters received a letter the other day from his daughter, Miss Margaret Waters, in Washington, D. C. She thought she recognized a soldier on guard at Arlington Hall, and asked him where he was from. He answered, "North Carolina."

"What part of North Carolina?" she asked.

"Western part, about 42 miles from Asheville," he said.

Miss Waters said, "I'm from Tryon." Then Pfc. Harold Nesmith exclaimed, "That's where I'm from."

W. P. (Doc) Potts, 56, retired Hendersonville business man, was killed by lightning Tuesday while picking black berries.

Agricultural leaders state that farmers must seek another cash crop for cotton on account of the keen competition of synthetic fibers.

Disabled veterans who have been discharged and now desire positions should apply immediately to the U. S. Employment office at Hendersonville and make application to attend the Employment Clinic at Asheville on July 23, 24 at David Millard High School

1,000 ATTEND PICNIC AT FEDERATION EVENT

Columbus, July 11.—A crowd estimated at more than a thousand gathered here today at the court house for the annual Farmers Federation picnic.

James G. K. McClure, president of the Farmers Federation, explained that the program of the Federation is three-fold: work, worship, and play.

Those speaking at the picnic of the progress during the past two years included Guy M. Sales, general manager; Charles Davis, assistant general manager; the Rev. Dumont Clarke, head of the religious department and the Lord's Acre movement; Mert Austin, freezer locker manager; R. T. Reed, head of the wood products department; and Joe Wilson, county farm agent of Polk County.

Dave Moseley, manager of the Tryon store of the Federation, made a brief address of welcome to the guests. The invocation which opened the meeting was pronounced by the Rev. N. A. Melton, superintendent of schools. Frank Reed, of Fairview, led in congregational singing.

Featured acts were presented by Alex Houston, Hendersonville boy ventriloquist; Neil Ann Allen, Canton acrobatic dancer; and Jean Kennickel, accordionist. John Weaver, of Green Creek, gave his famous "fox chase" on his fiddle, and Mr. and Mrs. Lefty Flynn entertained with four songs.

Musicians included the Pritchard brothers of Pea Ridge: Jesse, Geo. Charley and Frank; a string band composed of Gaither Robinson, George Sprouse, Frank Nanney,
