

ENTERED AS SECOND-CLASS MATTER AUGUST 20, 1928, AT THE POSTOFFICE
AT TRYON, N. C. UNDER THE ACT OF CONGRESS, MARCH 3, 1879

The Tryon Daily Bulletin

The World's Smallest DAILY Newspaper. Seth M. Vining, Editor.

5c PER COPY

TRYON, N. C., THURSDAY, NOV. 29, 1945

Weather Wednesday: high 55, low 33, rain .58 It is with regret we read the news of the death of E. T. H. Shaffer, of Walterboro, S. C., a noted author, who proudly claimed the honor of being the dean of Saluda's summer residents. He had been making Saluda his summer home for about half a century. He always included visits to his Tryon friends each year. He was a charming man who saw beauty in so many things, and told the world about through books and national magazines. . . Walter Brown, vice president of the Spartanburg Radio WSPÁ, has resigned as assistant to Secretary of State J. Byrnes, and will return to private business. He is a summer resident of Tryon. . . Another Washington news item, states that Col. Arthur Smith of Tryon desires the names of all Polk County service men now in hospitals, no matter where. He says the Masonic lodges will send a small Christmas gift to each of them. So, if you have a friend or relative in an army or navy hospital write his name or address to Col. Smith or send to the Bulletin.

Continued on Back Page

E. T. H. Shaffer Passes

Walterboro, S. C., Nov. 28 — Edward Terry Hendrie (Bobbie) Shaffer, South Carolina author who contributed to many magazines, died at his home, Rose Hill, in Walterboro this morning. His summer residence was in Saluda, N. C. Funeral arrangements are incomplete.

Mr. Shaffer was author of "Carolina Gardens," book review editor of the South Carolina Magazine, and contributor to The Atlantic Monthly, Forum, the Yale Review, National Geographic, Spur, Fortune, Nature Magazine, Textiles, South Atlantic Quarterly and other magazines.

He was the son of A. Casper Shaffer and Mrs. Amelia Jane Terry Shaffer of Walterboro, originally from New Jersey. He was born in Walterboro, attended local schools and graduated from the College of Charleston.

Mr. Shaffer was a trustee of the College of Charleston, an elder in Bethel Presbyterian church in Walterboro, for many years superintendent of the church's Sunday school; member of the Lions club, the Masons, and a director of the South Carolina Power company.

Surviving are his widow, Mrs. Clara Speights Barr Shaffer, formerly of Greenville; a son, Edward T. H., Jr., captain with Pan-American Airways in Guatemala; a daughter, Mrs. J. Blanding Holman of Batesburg, and five grandchildren. A foster sister, Mrs. S. E. Boney, lives in Syracuse, N. Y.

Old or new copies of The Tryon Daily Bulletin for sale at 5c each.