

The Tryon Daily Bulletin

The World's Smallest DAILY Newspaper. Seth M. Vining, Editor.

5c PER COPY

TRYON, N. C., THURSDAY, DEC. 20, 1945

Weather Wednesday: High 42, low 27, rain .28 . . . The Armed Forces to discharge 837,000 men and women within the next two months. Army points dropped to 50 for enlisted men. Navy points cut to 36 . . . Churchill, Lady Astor among noted to visit America in January. Mrs. Franklin Roosevelt goes to England as member of the United Nations First General Assembly . . . President Truman asks Congress to unite (16) and navy under one head.

Christmas program scheduled at Tryon First Baptist church for Friday night has been called off . . . Miss Ruth Butler of Tryon will be among the Mission Hospital student nurses to sing over WWNC radio station Saturday night at 6:30 . . . Berg Foster just called up and said to add to his ad that his Home Weavers is located one-half mile from Missildine's in the old Appalachian Handweavers building on road to the Country Club, but his ad was already printed, so he gets this break. All advertisements for The Bulletin should be in the day before publication. Part of each day's Bulletin is printed the day before. Anyone desiring to have a Christ-

Continued on Back Page

W. R. HOOTS DESCRIBES GROWTH OF A CHAMPION

Robert N. Golding of Columbus exhibited an 18-months-old Aberdeen Angus bull at the Southeastern Live Stock Show held in Atlanta, Ga., last November. This bull won the blue ribbon of his class and he won the reserved grand championship of the show. This means that the Golding bull was the second best in the show. The name of Mr. Golding's farm is "The Falling Waters Farm". It is located in the hills of Polk County, North Carolina. The bull was named for the farm, "General of Falling Waters." This accomplishment in the hilly Piedmont will, no doubt, be of interest to all cattle breeders in this section, and the methods used to gain this accomplishment may prove beneficial to others.

About four years ago, Mr. Golding bought 1,400 acres of land in Polk County and decided to raise cattle. At this time, he knew little about farming and raising cattle. He did, however, have some definite ideas about what he wanted to do and what it would take to do it. These ideas were useful in helping to work out a plan of development on the Falling Waters Farm. This plan of development for raising cattle on the farm consists of the following general, but basic ideas: First, the owner must know what he wants to do; second, the owner and herdsman must know the best cattle business; third, establish good pastures and make arrangements to produce good hay and other feed before securing animals.

After some study and observation

Continued on Page Two