be several days before some sections would be able to get current but that crews were working night and day to reach everybody as soon as possible. A special crew from Spartanburg that happened to be in Tryon for the holidays have been assisting in the work and have made greater progress than could have been expected of the regular forces.

H. B. Wolfe, of Charlotte, Supt. of maintenance and M. R. Kimbrell, electrical engineer and designer of Charlotte, both of the Duke Power Co. were here today on an inspection tour. They said the ice storm covered the widest area they ever experienced, but they were pleased at the progress made in restoring power all over the system.
