In regard to the article previously printed in The Tryon Daily Bulletin whereby all meats entering the freezer-locker must be graded and marked. We wish to state that locker users may continue to bring in their meats for processing and storing as before subject to the following regulations:

If the locker holder takes any meat in wholesale cuts or smaller to the locker plant, said meat may be stored and frozen without grading and marking. This means that the locker user may purchase steaks or chops, etc., and bring them in for processing.

Should you wish to bring a whole carcass to the locker plant, said carcass must be graded and marked according to OPA regulations as follows: AA-choice; A-good; B-commercial; C-utility; and D-for cutter and canner. All locker holders using meat for their own use will have their meat graded and marked at their request by the locker operators for which service a charge of 12½c a hundred pounds will be made.

No meat will be accepted by this locker plant for re-sale purposes without official government inspector's stamp and grade mark.

It is not necessary to grade and mark pork, but all beef, veal and lamb must be so graded and marked.

We have been advised that the OPA will enforce these regulations and it is our urgent request that locker holders comply with these regulations for their own protection and satisfaction.
