

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. C. Foster and family have moved into the Edgar Rowe house which they bought recently.

Bristles down is the rule to remember when drying many household brushes, say home economists. Hair brushes, nail brushes, tooth brushes and scrub brushes should not be turned on their backs to dry, as is the common practice, because this allows water to stand on the place where the bristles are fastened and to loosen them. Brushes, with wooden backs especially may be harmed by drying on their backs.

I am now at my home to cook for the public. I can make order cakes, rolls, and baked ham. Rosa Porcher Hannon, phone 130-R Adv Fri - tf
