THE DOLLAR SPEAKS

(. . . "But these don't put any rubber in the dollar." News from Washington.—Don Pryor.)

Time was when I could stretch and stretch, and do a lot of work, And I'm not idle nowadays although I seem to shirk;
But I'm so overburdened that my spirit soon will crack
Unless there's some transfusion that will get my rubber back.

I've heard of other shortages—in steel, and oil, and coal,
But shortage in my rubber could put millions on the dole.
Don't try reducing taxes now—just work for what I lack,
And I'll snap into action when I get my rubber back.

Though I am weak, my influence is felt around the globe,
But, Congress, do not waste your time and have another probe;
I have not stretched the truth at all—it's here in white and black,
And you'll be in the red unless I get my rubber back.

—Margery Strong.
