

ENTERED AS SECOND-CLASS MATTER AUGUST 20, 1928, AT THE POSTOFFICE
AT TRYON, N. C. UNDER THE ACT OF CONGRESS, MARCH 3, 1879

The Tryon Daily Bulletin

The World's Smallest DAILY Newspaper. Seth M. Vining, Editor

5c Per Copy

TRYON, N. C., THURSDAY, JAN. 6TH, 1949

Weather Wednesday: High 49, low 43, rain 1.91. Think of it getting down to 27 degrees in Southern California! A $20 million dollar fruit damage caused by the freeze; and oranges and grapefruit have started to rise in price. Here in Tryon and Landrum they are going down according to ads in The Bulletin. So this would be a good time for local people to stock up before the next shipment comes in at a higher price . . . The Community Cash Store warehouse in Spartanburg had a $12,000 fire Wednesday, according to an item in The Herald.

Folks in the Valley complaining about the interruption of electric service for hours at a time. . . . A Republican even took heart over Truman's promise of government electricity where private enterprise fails to furnish it. But then he said, "Gosh, you know what that would mean!" . . . During the holidays there was an ice storm in the mountains and Wednesday's trouble developed when the local office was short staffed for the moment. Taken as a whole this community is fortunate in having as good telephone service, electricity, post office, transportation, water and other utilities

Continued on Back Page

Governor Scott Inaugurated Today In Raleigh, N. C.

On assuming his duties today noon, Governor Kerr Scott, said he faced the future with confidence; that high prices had reached their peak and we are now in a period of readjustment. He said he could not see the possibility of depression as bank deposits are insured against loss; Labor has more than trebled its average wage; farmers have support prices against below cost of production; reserve funds have accumulated for the aged and needy through the Social Security program and business has made profits during the past eight years.

He said during the war and later, neither labor nor materials were available and the State accumulated money but our public service needs increased and it is our job to wipe out this deficit. He proposed a 15-point program which included improvement and extension of roads; an increase in teachers salaries and the erection of adequate buildings and facilities; an improved health program; increased aid to the aged and indigent; conservation of our natural resources; improvement of public utilities to serve the farmers with phones and electricity; stimulation of more representative government; a referendum that will give the people more participation in making their laws; improving election laws; aid to veterans, labor, business and industry, personnel of state employees, giving more power to local governments, cooperate with federal government. He said these things cost money but we must go forward if we make progress and give the

Continued on Back Page