Dr. A. V. Dye At Rotary

Dr. Dye's topic at Rotary Friday was a discussion of the order in which peace and freedom are placed in the public mind today. He feels that the issue is being confused by too much thinking about peace. He does not believe that we shall have enduring peace until freedom is reached on a National level.

He mentioned the many exchange scholarships which are available today and cited instances of where the recipients were only interested in technical skill, never culture, education or religion. The Boxer indemnity has educated some 6,000 Chinese students in our schools and universities yet many are to be found among the leaders of the Chinese Reds. Many officers of the Japanese air force that bombed Pearl Harbor had been educated in our colleges.

Senator Fulbright of Arkansas was the author of a bill after World War II that all surplus property belonging to the United States should be sold in place and the proceeds used for educational purposes between the peoples of the transaction. This has been a benefit as a stabilizer of the dollar gap in many instances as well of great educational value.

The founders of our Republic, and we are the oldest in the world from the standpoint of continuous operation, declared that we must be ready to lay down our lives, sacrifice future fortunes and our sacred honor to defend our free institutions. The doctor thinks that we should be prepared to take such action should the
